

INSTAGRAM CASE STUDY

Upmeds.id

Social media design for medical students

A flexible Instagram feed system that makes clinical topics feel friendly, credible and easy to scan.

A feed built to teach, promote and celebrate

Upmeds.id is an Indonesian medical education platform that supports students with tutoring, research guidance and free classes. Its Instagram feed has to do many jobs at once: teach, promote, recruit and celebrate.

I designed a flexible system of 15 post designs that keeps every topic, from clinical imaging to national holidays, looking like one brand. Content and copy came from the client, so my focus stayed on visual design, hierarchy and consistency across the grid.

One feed, many different messages

A medical education feed is never about one thing. In a single month the brand may announce a free class, recruit tutors, explain a sign on an X ray, warn about a parasite and greet followers on a national holiday.

Without a system, that range looks scattered and students scroll past. The goal was to give every topic its own personality while the whole feed still reads as Upmeds.id.

1

Look credible

Clean, clinical surfaces signal trust to future doctors.

2

Feel friendly

Real people, warm expressions and casual Bahasa copy.

3

Stay consistent

One palette, one headline style and reusable layouts.

4

Stop the scroll

Big headlines, bold cutouts and a clear focal point.

Speaking like a smart senior, not a textbook

New and prospective students

Kelas dasar mahasiswa baru and Prepare your medical school welcome students who are just starting out.

Students in research mode

Systematic search and Penelitian menghambat kelulusan help those stuck on final projects.

Future tutors and alumni

Open recruitment posts and alumni speakers invite experienced students to teach.

Tone of voice: Copy such as Kalian udah nonton? keeps a peer to peer voice, while the visuals stay clean and clinical so the brand still feels trustworthy.

Clinical clean, with friendly energy

People first

Doctor and student cutouts point, smile and hold books. Faces make a medical brand approachable and give every post an instant focal point.

Teal as the signature

Everything lives in teal and mint, finished with a soft wave footer, so any three posts side by side read as one family.

Loud headlines, quiet backgrounds

Heavy outlined headlines sit on pale, glassy hospital backgrounds, so the message wins in a fast scroll.

Three posts, three topics, one look.

Each post changes its subject and illustration, but headline treatment, colour and footer stay fixed.

Six topics, one recognisable look

Study resources

Book recommendations with real cover thumbnails.

Clinical learning

Explainers such as the signs of ileus on an abdominal X ray.

Health awareness

Pop culture hooks and dengue prevention with Wolbachia.

Classes and webinars

Speaker led sessions and free classes with date and time.

Recruitment and services

Tutor recruitment countdowns and research guidance.

Celebrations

National Education Day and Idul Fitri 1445 H greetings.

Rekomendasi Buku Anatomi

A study resource list turned into a scannable post. The thoughtful doctor holding a book says recommendation before a single word is read.

- Clear reading order

Headline top right, then a label pill, then three book cards stacked with name tags.

- Real covers as proof

Actual book thumbnails make the list instantly recognisable and save readers a search.

- Tested at phone size

The mockup shows the post in context, with story rings and carousel dots, to confirm every line stays legible on a small screen.

One template, three speakers

Classes and webinars are the most repeated content type, so this layout had to be fast to reuse without feeling copied.

Free class, Systematic search and Prepare your medical school share one structure.

● Alternating sides

Portrait and text swap sides from post to post, which gives the grid rhythm.

● Fixed info card

Speaker, date and time always sit in the same spot so followers find them at once.

● Credentials visible

Alumni and Best Tutor lines build trust in each speaker.

Hooks and countdowns

Parasyte: The Grey

A pop culture reference opens the post, then the headline links it to real parasites students meet in class. A red virus and warning icon add the only strong accent, so the post stands out in the feed.

Recruitment countdown

A giant countdown number creates urgency. The pointing gesture sends the eye down to the call to action, framed by a stethoscope outline.

Alternate versions show how the same layout adapts to different sublines.

Seasonal and illustrated posts

Hari Pendidikan Nasional was explored three ways: stacked books with a globe, a circular ring with letter blocks and a backpack with a graduation cap. The headline lockup stays in the same position each time.

Idul Fitri 1445 H moves to warm gold lanterns, ketupat and a mosque. The wave footer and clean headline keep the celebration inside the brand.

A circular emblem with a red ring appears in both the education and the dengue posts, linking illustrated posts across topics.

Nine posts, one grid

Portrait led posts, illustrated posts and text led posts alternate across the grid. The mix creates rhythm, while the teal system keeps the profile looking planned rather than random.

- Balanced density
Busy posts sit next to calm ones so the eye can rest.
- Repeated anchors
Headlines, pills and wave footers return in every row.
- Colour continuity
Red and gold appear sparingly, so teal remains the signature.

Posts, mockup and feed together

Presenting the designs inside an Instagram frame shows how they behave in real use, with story rings, captions and carousel dots around them.

- Readable at small size
Headlines hold up on a phone screen.
- Ready for pitching
The same layout works for client presentations and portfolios.

What this project shows

01

Systems over single posts

Every post is a variation of a small set of components, which makes the feed faster to produce and easier to keep consistent.

02

Warmth inside a serious field

Real faces, friendly copy and bright teal make medical education feel welcoming without losing credibility.

03

Designed for the scroll

Large outlined headlines and clear focal points keep each message readable at a glance on a phone.
